Keeping an eye on your luggage while travelling can be challenging. Be it on a flight or in a train, your bags remain vulnerable to theft or misplacement. To protect your luggage from any such incidents, an optimal solution can be to use luggage trackers. In this article we explore some such handy tracking gadgets and explain how these can assist you while you travel.

The intelligent one

Trackdot tracker is infused with intelligence. It utilises mobile connectivity to consistently update the whereabouts of the luggage it is in. Its compact size allows you to place it inside your bags or suitcases easily. The USP of Trackdot is that, if you are travelling by flight, it does not need to be turned on or off manually to maintain flight norms.

A built-in artificial intelligence (AI) suite turns the gadget to flight mode when it senses that the aircraft is accelerating for take off. As soon as the aircraft slows down while landing, the same AI suite turns it back on, syncs itself with the local network and immediately notifies you via SMS about its new location. This way you can be sure that your luggage has arrived at the desired destination. In the unfortunate incidence of the luggage being misplaced, you can instantly inform the concerned authorities and start the recovery process with proper leads without delay. It is available for US$ 40 (approx. ₹ 2600) on www.amazon.com
