

Government raises investment cap for angel tax concession for startups

Giving a major relief to startups, the government has relaxed angel tax norms for startups, including increasing the investment limit to ₹ 250 million for availing income tax concessions by startups. Currently, startups can avail tax concession only if total investment, including funding from angel investors, does not exceed ₹ 100 million.

The definition of startups has also been revised to an entity whose turnover for any of the financial year, since incorporation or registration, has not exceeded ₹ 1 billion instead of the existing ₹ 250 million.

Investments by listed companies with a net worth of ₹ 1 billion or turnover of ₹ 2.5 billion on eligible startups shall be exempt from Section 56 (2) (vii b) of Income Tax Act, beyond the ₹ 250 million limit. Also, investments by non-residents, alternate investment funds—category I—shall also be exempt under this section beyond the limit of ₹ 250 million.

A startup shall also be eligible for exemption under Section 56(2) (vii b) if it is a private limited company recognised by Department for Promotion of Industry and Internal Trade (DPIIT) and is not investing in specified asset classes.

Eligible startups only have to file a duly signed self-declaration with DPIIT for availing the exemption. DPIIT shall transmit these declarations to Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT).

Government schemes to shape India into an export hub: IT secretary

Booming demand for electronic goods proves that India's insatiable desire for electronics is only going to see steeper rise in the coming days. Through this, the government is urgently looking for ways to capture a larger share of the electronics manufacturing value chain.

By framing a National Electronics

On The Move

Cognizant appoints Brian Humphries as CEO

Cognizant has named Brian Humphries, currently chief executive officer (CEO) of Vodafone Business, as its CEO and a member of the board of directors. Following Humphries' appointment, Francisco D'Souza, who co-founded Cognizant and has served as CEO since 2007, will serve as full-time executive vice chairman to facilitate the transition through June 30, 2019. Thereafter, he will remain on the board as vice chairman.

Francisco D'Souza named chairman of WEF IT and Electronics Governors community

Cognizant's co-founder Francisco D'Souza has been named chairman of the IT and Electronics Governors community at the World Economic Forum's annual meet in Davos, Switzerland. The IT and Electronics Governors community is a group of business leaders dedicated to ensuring long-term sustainability of their industry and society.

Robert Swan appointed as CEO of Intel

Intel has appointed Robert Swan as CEO, a position he was holding on an interim basis following the departure of former CEO Brian Krzanich. Swan will also be joining the company's board of directors.

Natasha Jog joins Facebook as election integrity lead for India

Facebook has roped in former journalist Natasha Jog as its election integrity lead for India. New Delhi-based Jog will report to Katie Harbath, Facebook's public policy director, global elections. Harbath is based out of Facebook's headquarters in California.

Boeing appoints Salil Gupte as India head

US aircraft manufacturer Boeing has named Salil Gupte as its India head. Gupte will succeed Prat Kumar, who was appointed vice president and program manager of Boeing's F-15 fighter aircraft programme in November 2018. He will be based in New Delhi and report to Marc Allen, president of Boeing International.

Vodafone Idea appoints Suresh Vaswani as independent director

Vodafone Idea has appointed Suresh Vaswani as an independent director for three years. Vaswani is an engineer from IIT Kharagpur, and holds a management degree from IIM Ahmedabad. He is currently acting as an external global advisor to Bain Consulting, and is also a board member of technology company Servion Inc. Vaswani also serves as a senior director on Everstone Capital, where he is operating advisor for its IT and BPO portfolios.

Aneesh Surender Madani quits Twitter

Aneesh Surender Madani, head of sports partnerships for Asia Pacific at Twitter, has put in his papers. Madani joined Twitter in November 2013 as head of sports partnerships for India. Later, South East Asia and, starting June 2017, the entire Asia-Pacific was brought under his ambit.