Policy, the government is prescribing an export-led strategy. At various occasions, the electronics industry dignitaries have been discussing various means and ways on how India can not only manufacture products in high volumes but also manufacture high-value products and gradually increase its value addition in the global scenario.

Currently, India has a US$ 112 billion demand for electronics manufacturing. At a recent industry meet, talking about the current domestic manufacturing scenario, Ajay Prakash Sawhney, secretary, Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (MeitY), said that, apart from various brands coming to the country to set up manufacturing base, their supply chain partners have also started participating.

Cellphone assembly units fear shutdown following proposed duty hike

The government's plan to hike custom duty on certain cellphone components may lead to distress in the industry and impact around 100 cellphone assembly units in the country. The government has proposed import duty on LCD assemblies, touch panels and vibrator motors, which is to be imposed later this year under the phased manufacturing plan (PMP).

As many as 100 out of the 127 cellphone assembly units could be closed down if the government increases the custom duty on cellphone components, as per a report in a leading Indian daily. Therefore India Cellular & Electronics Association (ICEA), the apex body representing the mobile industry, has written to the government seeking to postpone the hike in the custom duty to next year.

BHEL bags 129MW solar project worth ₹ 5.65 billion

Bharat Heavy Electricals Ltd (BHEL) has bagged an engineering, procurement and construction (EPC) contract to set up solar capacity amounting to 129MW from solar photovoltaic (PV) power plants in Telangana. State-run coal mining company, Singareni Collieries, has placed the order. The project is worth more than ₹ 5.65 billion—the biggest solar PV power plant
