High GST may hit Make in India electronics goal

GST rates set for electronics could hurt Prime Minister Modi's flagship Make In India initiative as the rates in some cases make it cheaper to import goods. The Manufacturers' Association for Information Technology (MAIT), the apex body representing India's IT hardware sectors and certain manufacturers, has expressed concern over GST regime tax slabs for printers, monitors and data cables. For example, pre-assembled desktops are charged at 18 per cent but standalone monitors that are mostly manufactured in the country are charged at 28 per cent.

Speaking to Economic Times, Anwar Shirpurwala, executive director, MAIT, said, "All IT products should be in one slab. Desktop computers are imported into India at zero per cent and have been put at 18 per cent GST. If you compare it with a local company that manufactures a monitor or buys monitor and CPU locally to integrate and sell in India, there would be a clear difference of price. Government should look into this anomaly."

Shirpurwala added that considering the importance of IT in government projects, it would be better if all IT goods, as described under the IT act, are subjected to 18 per cent GST. This would help local manufacturers build products and contribute to the cause of Digital India.

India, Canada partner for affordable healthcare

Unique Broadband Systems (UBS) of Canada and Kaynes Technology of India will be funded by the Global Innovation & Technology Alliance (GITA) of India and Global Affairs Canada for co-development and co-marketing of high-power RF amplifiers for low-field magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) applications.
