

around the end of this year. Part of the Omega group, OSM will venture into the sector with an investment of around 750 million rupees. It is also open to onboarding a partner as it aspires to become a global player in this space, group Chairman Uday Narang has said.

Wipro's aerospace unit opens second manufacturing plant

Bengaluru based Wipro Infrastructure Engineering (WIN)'s aerospace unit has opened its second facility at the Aerospace Special Economic Zone located near the Bengaluru International Airport to manufacture precision parts for aerospace applications. WIN said the new facility will expand its manufacturing footprint for aerospace applications to around 30,000 square metres across India, the US, and Israel, including the recent acquisition of the manufacturing facility of Boeing Supplier TECT Aerospace's Washington unit.

Dhruva Space raises ₹220 million in funding round

Hyderabad based space tech firm Dhruva Space has announced that it has raised 220 million rupees in a funding round led by IAN Fund and Blue Ashva Capital. Dhruva said that it is already executing orders worth several million dollars. It will use the funds to expand its client base to other key locations, including the US and Middle East. The company was launched in 2012 by Sanjay Nekkanti, an alumnus of SRM University and part of the team that built India's first student satellite.

BEL registers good growth during second quarter of FY 2021-22

Navratna Defence PSU Bharat Electronics Limited (BEL) has achieved a turnover of 36.22 billion rupees, registering a growth of 14.45% during the second quarter of FY 2021-22 over the turnover of 31.65 billion rupees recorded in the corresponding period of the previous year. The order book position of the company as on 1st October 2021 stood at 546.27 billion rupees.

Optimus Electronics looking to expand production capacity in India

A top company official at Optimus Electronics has revealed that it is planning to expand its production capacity and aims to increase its headcount by around 2,000 people in next two years. This comes as the government formulates various schemes to boost local manufacturing. The government is giving incentives to companies under the PLI scheme based on the investments they make and incremental sales on a year-on-year basis.

Trentar acquires 75% stake in UAV startup Trishula

Dorf Ketal Chemicals' subsidiary Trentar Pvt Ltd has announced that it has acquired 75% stake in Hyderabad based unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV) propulsion system startup Trishula. This comes just a few months after Trentar announced that it will begin manufacturing drones under its newly established UAV manufacturing division, for which it is planning to spend a billion rupees over the next three years.

DataDirect Networks to make data storage solutions in India

American data storage company DataDirect Networks (DDN) is looking to invest around five billion rupees in the next five years to manufacture data storage solutions in India. DDN Storage General Manager for India and Southeast Asia, Atul Vidwansa, said that the company is going to scale its Delhi-NCR based manufacturing unit to achieve 100 petabytes storage capacity by mid-2022 with an initial investment of a billion rupees.

Bounce to infuse $100 million in manufacturing electric 2-wheelers

Electric two-wheeler rental platform Bounce is infusing about $100 million (around 7.42 billion rupees) across the manufacturing of e-scooters and expanding the battery swapping infrastructure over the next one year. Investment in battery swapping infrastructure over the next 12 months will be 50-75 million, and a large part of this is being debt financed. Bounce has already signed an agreement for supplying about 30,000 scooters in Turkey over a period of one year.

Representational image

Representational image of the total market. Domestic brands captured around 75% of the Indian smartwatch market in Q3 2021, compared to 38% in Q3 2020.

Government discussions with global EV battery companies likely soon

The government of India is looking to hold talks with several global companies to set up electric vehicle battery manufacturing facilities in India. Among these companies are Tesla, LG Energy, Samsung, Northvolt, Panasonic, and Toshiba. India will host five roadshows starting next month in countries including the United States, Germany, France, South Korea, and Japan to convince battery makers to set up local production, an official said.

Applicants under PLI scheme selected for air-conditioners and LED lights

The Department for Promotion of Industry & Internal Trade (DPIIT) has