

By addressing regulatory concerns, enhancing supply chains, fostering R&D, and investing in infrastructure and skills, India can emerge as a global leader in medical devices' manufacturing. The potential for exponential growth is within our reach

India now has a population of over 1.4 billion, surpassing China, and is

The primary drivers of the medical device industry are described below.