

At-a-glance view of key industry trends that can shape the future of your business...

5G Revenue to Reach US$842 bn by 2035

The 5G market includes the sub 6GHz (3.5GHz to 7GHz) and millimetre wave (mmWave, >24GHz) bands. As the market continues to explore the full potential of 5G, reports forecast that by the end of 2033 the revenue generated by consumer mobile services will be US$840 billion. This is based on the revenue, subscriptions, and infrastructure of five global regions (US, China, Korea, Japan, and Europe).

(Source: IDTechEx)

Global ESD Revenue Reaches US$3,748.7 mn

The Electronic System Design (ESD) industry revenue increased by 17.5% YoY in Q2 2022. When compared to the past four quarters, there was an increase of 15.3%. The Computer-Aided Engineering (CAE) revenue increased by 12.1% to $1,137.3 million, and IC Physical Design and Verification revenue increased by 13% to $657 million. The PCB and MCM revenue increased 22% to $347.1 million while the SIP revenue jumped 22.6% to $1,476.7 million. The Americas was the largest reporting region by revenue, procuring $1,643.4 million of electronic system design products and services in Q2 2022, a 20.2% increase.

(Source: www.electronicsb2b.com)

H1 2022: Global Smartphone CIS Shipments Drop

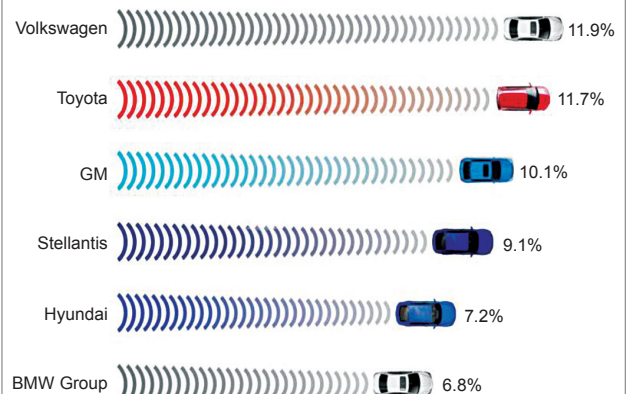

As per reports, Global smartphone CMOS image sensor (CIS) shipments dropped 14% YoY 1H22, with only around 2.4 billion units being shipped. The multi-camera trend slows down at the global level as geopolitical upheaval, inflation, and weak economic conditions contribute to weak demand for smartphones. The shipments are expected to move upwards for H2, though the total output of 2022 is still feared to fall 10% YoY.

(Source: Counterpoint Research)

Connected Cars Witness Increasing Demand

As per reports, the connected car penetration (50.5%) surpassed that of non-connected cars globally in 2Q22. Car manufacturers are now gradually shifting to factory-fitted embedded connectivity starting from the base model itself, causing a steady fall in non-connected car sales. Audi, BMW, and Mercedes have introduced connected cars with inbuilt Wi-Fi to the market.

(Source: Counterpoint Research)