watches are expected to be challenged in the next few years. Some experts believe that the ear-worn devices could become more popular than smartwatches in coming years, especially given the success of products such as Apple's AirPods and Sam-

sung's IconX.

Also, as the market is dealing with preventive healthcare, it needs to go through many regulatory approvals. Currently, the wearables market needs attention from all major tech and health players as it requires a significant investment in research and development to make these devices relevant to a larger audience. As these players add new use cases, users will be more dependent on this form factor, and it will be difficult to opt-out from their life.

Future of wearable technology

In the coming years, the smartwatch segment is likely to witness lot of technology advancement and keep leading the overall segment of the wearable devices' market. According to an industry expert, traditional smartwatches' market share could reach 20 per cent of the consumer goods by the end of 2022 with more fashionable and stylish products.

According to some reports, the global wearable devices market is likely to grow at a CAGR of 11.3 per cent from 2019 to 2025 and reach US$ 62.82 billion by 2025. According to Mordor Intelligence, the smart wearable market was at 216.18 million sold units in 2019 and is expected to reach 614.31 million units by 2025. EFY
